The Center for Italian Studies presents

Midway in the Journey of Our Life

A Lecture by Lino Pertile,

Professor Emeritus of Romance Languages and Literature, Harvard University

Lino Pertile is Carl A. Pescosolido Emeritus Professor of Romance Languages and Literatures at Harvard University. He served as Master of Eliot House before becoming Director of I Tatti, the Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies in Florence. He has published extensively on Dante, Petrarch, and the early history of the novel. Among his publications are La puttana e il gigante: dal Cantico dei Cantici al Paradiso terrestre di Dante (1998), The Cambridge History of Italian Literature (1996), and La punta del disio: Semantica del desiderio nella Divina Commedia (2005). He is the editor, with Rachel Jackoff, of the forthcoming special issue of Forum Italicum (55/2) on the occasion of Dante's anniversary.
